News from Walker's Expedition.

PARTICULARS OF THE CAPTURE OF TRUXILLO. The schooner Dewdrop, Capt. Terry, arrived at this port this morning, from Ruatan Island, the 16th inst. Among the passengers is a gentleman who left Truxillo on the 12th. From him we have full particulars of the capture of that city, and a full narative of the events up to the latest date.

Walker made his appearance before the town of Truxillo on the 6th of August, at about three or four o'clock in the morning. His whole force numbered 110 men, all counted. They approached the town in two separate parties. The first was landed some three miles below the city on the beach, and proceeded towards the town by land. The second was debarked in small boats and proceeded pari passu along the shore. They were all well armed with Minie muskets; had twenty rounds of catridge apiece, and were well supplied with everything else necessary.

Our informant, who is personally acquainted with nearly all of them, says they were a fine looking set of men, and showed a confident bearing as they marched up towards the town.

The news of the landing was conveyed to the town and fort by a Carib. The fort was garrisoned by seventy-five to one hundred soldiers, sustained by three or four hundred patriotes, (citizens), who were, of course, immediately called to arms to dispute the entrance of the Amer-

There were mounted two 24 pounders, and some eighteen smaller pieces-the first two brass, of old Spanish manufacture. They were soon scattered and completely routed. The Americans then continued their advance in full defiance of the fort, and the order was given to charge the rampart, which was done in handsome style, and the occupants driven in every direction before them. The firing at this time was sharp, and to give a true demode of warfare of these people, and one to dodge as himself. As said before, Walker and Cabanas, as the leaders of the liberal party, perfectly understand and sympathize with each other. It is supposed that the plan of operation is this: As soon as he shall have assumed his position at Truxillo, Walker, leaving a garrison for the fort, will set out with such forces as he may have raised for the interior. Cabanas, in the meantime, will march this way to meet him, with such forces as he may command. It is believed that the place of meeting will be Comayagua, when a General Government will be established, representing both the Spanish American and Central American forces.

At Truxillo, Walker had the good fortune also to come into possession, with the forts, of a large number of small arms, and a considerable quantity of ammunicessity for it; he did not think there would tion, provisions, and other stores. He also found therein, as before mentioned, a number of pieces of cannon, which were being remounted, and everything put in the best possible condition.

Provisions and stores were being brought in from the neighboring country and island, and there was no doubt of his being able to make good his possession of the town against all odds. He has not lost a man since the expedition started, and when our informant left, all his men, except the wounded, were in perfect health .- New Orleans Picayune.

Don't Wait.-John Foster, in his essay on decision of character, says: "It is wonderful how even the apparent casualties of life seem to bow to a spirit that will not bow to them;" words which we wish all those young men would ponder, who, instead of throwing themselves into the work of life and doing a manly part, are forever waiting for something to turn up. There seems to be altogether too many of this class of persons at the present day, and a sad sight they are. Irresolute, indolent, doing nothing, waiting a turn in the tide, and yet never throwing themselves upon the tide and breasting the waters like men in earnest. Their province seems to be to wait in listlessness and sloth, while the diligent and persevering brush by them, hasten on, and secure the prize.
